Step by Step instructions for using databases

Tips: Remember to always use search terms and use AND / OR / NOT

- Example Blues not Jazz
- Blues and Depression
- Blues or Depression

Don't forget to open a google doc so that you can put your citations in.

Infobase Databases and ebooks

- Click on link
- Username is edenhigh
password is edenhigh

Scroll down to the subject tab that is needed for your search

For example if you are looking for "cultures of the world" you would look at World Geography

Look through articles

To cite for your citation page ....When you open up the article look for Citation at top of article.

Galesgroup

- Click on that
- In quick search on top right type in your subject (example : Divorce and Children)
- It will take you to a password dsbniag

- The first thing you will see are articles from magazines
- At the top click on Academic Journals
- Make sure Full text is checked off
- Next scroll through documents to see if there are any.

The citation is at the top of the opened article "Cite".

Ebscohost

- on the link
- Click on ebscohost
- Type in search term (Example: Brain injury and concussion)
- Scroll down and make sure Full text and Peer review is checked off
- Press Search

Citations is on the right along with your help tools after you click on an article

Citations: For sample papers or citations

If using

Microsoft Word

- Open A Word Document
- Go to Reference Tab
- Look for Style APA or MLA Chicago (Always do whatever guide your teacher requests).
- Then click on Insert Citation and Add New Source
- Fill in the information
- Press OK
- Once finished adding all your resources used click on Bibliography and then Insert Bibliography.
- Notice that the citations/references are alphabetical not numbered.

Google docs

- Open up a new document
- Go to "Add Ons" see if you have EasyBib on and click it to open it up. If not add it under manage add ons (search for EasyBib which is a big orange box)
- Click either book/Journal article or website depending what you're citing.
- Place URL or title in search

- Pick your style APA, MLA etc
- Search
- Once your article or book title comes up, click on it and then press add to bibliography
- It will automatically alphabetize and place and space correctly.
